Too Much For Him.

It is evidently one thing to work without knowing how much we do and another thing to have our labors mapped out before us in detail. For several months a business house in this city has enjoyed the ministrations of an unusually faithful colored janitor. Always prompt and faithful, unerring in the discharge of his various duties, Tom was a great favorite with the firm, and the prospect was that he would abide with them many years.

One day it occurred to the senior partner that a little more system in Tom's routine would be advisable and perhaps render his work a trifle easier, so he wrote out in plain characters an outline of the chores Tom had been doing every week, arranged perhaps with more convenience to the firm and to Tom. Unfortunately Tom could not read, so the list was given to another man employed on rougher work, with instructions to read it to Tom and explain to him each day's prescribed duties.

When the schedule was read to Tom, however, the effect was astonishing and disastrous. He listened quietly, but his eyes grew bigger and his black wool seemed to bristle on his head. At the end he reached for his cap and said to the porter: "Good gracious! I ain' goin to do all that work." Then he walked out and hasn't been seen since.—Indianapolis Journal.

Tricked the Vicious Camel.

A valuable camel working in an oil mill in Africa was beaten by its driver. Seeing that the camel had treasured up the injury and was only waiting a favorable chance for revenge, the driver kept a strict watch upon the animal. Time passed away. The camel, knowing that it was watched, was quiet and obedient, and the driver began to think that the beating was forgotten, when one night, after several months had gone by, the man was sleeping on a raised platform in the mill, while, as is customary, the camel was stabled in a corner.

Happening to awake, the driver saw by the bright moonlight that when all was quiet the animal looked cautiously around, rose softly and, stealing toward a spot where a bundle of clothes and a burnoose thrown carelessly on the ground resembled a sleeping figure, cast itself with violence upon them, rolling with all its weight and tearing them most viciously with its teeth. Satisfied that its revenge was compiete, the camel was returning to its corner when the driver sat up and spoke. At the sound of his voice and realizing the mistake it had made, the animal was so mortified at the failure and discovery of its scheme that it dashed its head against the wall and died on the spot.

Easy Way to Be Generous.

In the Baptist church of a New England village was an old man who had all the Christian graces save one, and that one was the grace of liberality. He would do anything in the world for the cause of religion but give up his money. At the close of the financial year 1869 the church found itself $400 in debt. A church meeting was called, and it was voted to circulate a subscription paper on the spot and endeavor to thus raise the sum needed. This was done, and the old gentleman did not put his name on the paper. The result was rather disheartening, $200 only having been pledged. Silence reigned for a moment, when one of the most generous men in the church moved that "we double our subscriptions." Instantly the old gentleman was on his feet, and with extraordinary fervor cried, "I second the motion."

He evidently felt that he was thus doing his part in hastening a most desirable result.—Harper's Round Table.

What Love Is.

Miss Sophie Loury employs an exceedingly communicative old colored man to attend to odd jobs about her studio now and then, and his sayings have become proverbial among Miss Loury's familiars. He came to work one day not long ago very full of the goings on of a young man he knew, who was in love.

"But what is love, uncle?" asked Miss Loury.

Uncle wagged his head wisely.

"Miss Sophie," he said solemnly, "love is dizziness, unizziness and inattention to business."

And really I don't know of any definition more concise, complete and altogether adequate than that.—Washington Post.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

OF GOLF AND DEATH.

Our planet is a links whereon we play
Few holes or many, as death may decree.
We call him Colonel Bogy; 'tis the way
Of mankind to invent a kindlier name,
A jesting phrase for the arch enemy,
With every match the colonel leaves the tee,
But all alone he finishes the game

Some start with the rash confidence of youth.
To end in an untimely bunker grave;
The colonel is inclement, void of ruth,
Spares not the slashing driver in his pride,
No deft approach, no pawky putt can stave
Him off—many, not overbrave,
Tear up their cards in futile suicide.

Sooner or later, oftener soon than late,
We pass, and the next victim forth is led
Vaunting himself superior over fate,
But ere the home green is in sight he yields;
With one grim stroke the colonel lays him dead.
Yet is the long match ours; 'tis soothly said
The colonel plays not in the Elysian fields.
—Pall Mall Gazette.

IN THE TREE.

The man in the tree was thinking.

Way off under a sunny sky was a squalid hut on a hillside. There were orange trees around the hut and in the distance were long stretches of vineyards, where men and women once sang as they worked.

Now the women were working alone save for the presence of a few half grown youths and crippled old men.

And the women did not sing as they worked. They wept sometimes, but more often they looked silently and wonderingly off into the west, where the sky line was broken by the crumbling bastions of a ruined castle.

Off beyond the castle was the sea and beyond the sea was—they knew not what. Strange lands where men and youths went to come back no more.

This was the picture that came to the mind of the man in the tree.

But one cannot sit with a cramped leg and dream of distant things for long. So the man in the tree moved and the picture under the sunny sky gave place to another, which was more immediate and more distinct.

Spreading out before him and underneath was a wooded valley with a hill beyond. Down into this valley a hundred yards to the right dipped a trail.

Yesterday it had been a mere mule path half closed by underbrush, but now it was clearly defined. The bushes had been broken off, bent over and pushed aside, while the tramp of many feet had ground to powder the weeds and grass.

At a distance of perhaps half a mile beyond and below him the trail traversed an open space. As he looked at this opening in the screen of green he saw figures crossing it. They stood out sharp and distinct in the bright sunlight. They were men with guns. Few of them wore coats. Many of them were bare from the waist up. Their faces were dark, almost black at that distance, but their chests were white. What fine targets they made, those white chests!

The man in the tree picked up the slim barreled rifle which had been resting across his bent knees. He raised the sight slide and squinted through it until he could see the steel pick on the end of the barrel outlined against the white flesh of a figure in the sunlighted gap of the trail.

A little tongue of flame darted from the muzzle of the rifle. One of the figures in the green frame stumbled and fell.

The man in the tree laughed softly and patted the stock of his rifle.

Still the men with guns streamed along the trail. Aha! They are running. They will soon begin to run the other way. Just wait until the trenches get the range. A white back makes as fine a target as a white chest.

But hour after hour passed and the human current did not ebb.

Were they hours or only minutes? What was happening up on the hillside? The man in the tree turned to see.

Far up behind him on the crest was a square hut, with a thatched roof. It looked like a dovecot, but it was not. It was a blockhouse. What was taking place there he could only guess. He saw an irregular line of dark figures scrambling up the hill, some of them falling to rise no more. Why did not the rest go back? Now they swarmed about the building. How their guns smoked!

"Carajo!" The red and yellow flag is down.

Then the man in the tree looked into the heart of things and saw his fate. These half naked pigs who fought like devils, they would not be driven back. He was cut off. To the right, to the left, in front, behind—they were there, these men with guns who fired and ran forward, and fired and ran forward again.

The picture of the faraway hut on the hillside, the women and the vineyards came once more, and the man in the tree bowed his head and wept.

It passed. He looked again down the hillside. Not alone on the trail, but in many other places the figures moved now.

The man in the tree tightened the strap which passed under his arms and around the tree. He fitted the rifle stock to his shoulder and peered out under the leaves. There was a big fellow with something red sewed to his shirt sleeve. Probably an officer. S-r-r-r! That must have gone too high. S-r-r-r! Just a little to the left. S-r-r-r! That went true. He's down. Very busy was the man in the tree.

Not too busy, however, to note the approach of a little squad of men who stopped and looked up into the trees and now and then fired into the dense foliage of the branches.

The man in the tree laid his rifle carefully across his knees and reached into the leaves above him. He brought down a gourd water bottle, held it to his ear and shook it. From the pocket of his blue and white cotton blouse he fished out a piece of dry black bread. His meal ended, he threw the empty gourd from him and began to count the cartridge clips still remaining in his hat.

"Uno, dos, tres, quatro—Christi!"

Only 20 more shots, and then—why, then the war would be at an end for the man in the tree. It remained but to die. Think you, good St. Jose, who watches over the vineyard folk at home heard that prayer or did the guns make too much noise?

On came the squad. The leader was tall and fair. He wore a blue shirt with chevrons on the sleeve and a stripe which had once been white down the outer trousers seam. He was making straight for the tree in which sat the man with the rifle.

At a distance of 100 feet the man in the tree had brought the pick on the end of his rifle down so that its top just reached the space between the blue eyes of the man on foot. His last shot should be a fancy one.

Two of the squad eyed a tree to the right, but the rest pressed on behind their leader.

"At the third step I will fire," decided the man in the tree.

At the second step the officer halted. A thick bush with briars was in his way. He could see over it, and peered curiously into the branches of the tree.

"I believe that's where he is," said he. "The shots seemed to come straight from this direction."

"No: it was farther to the left,' said a man behind him. "That's the one, that tree over there."

"Let's try a shot or two anyway,' said a second.

"What senseless chatter," thought the man in the tree.

"No: it's a waste of lead," said the officer. "Dave was right. It must have been the other one. Come on!" He stepped back from the bush and started toward the left.

As he moved off the man in the tree followed him through the sights. He had moved half a dozen paces before the rifle sputtered. The tall fair man pitched heavily forward.

"He was there, blasted coward!" said one of the squad. The others said nothing. They were shooting.

"Why don't he drop—curse him?" muttered a soldier after a score of shots had raked the branches.

For answer they saw a rifle slide down, strike a branch and bound off to the ground. The strap was doing its work.

* * * * * * *

Two women sat dry eyed, heartbroken and comfortless. One was by a window against which beat the cold rain of October. The skies wept for her. The other stared out over sun kissed vineyards, where the leaves were yellow and brown.

"He will come no more," said the first.

"Ay! El no viene mas!" said the other, meaning about the same.—Sewell Ford in Short Stories.

Some Mexican Stupidity.

In the "Observations of a Ranchwoman" are plentiful instances illustrating both the "shif'lessness" and stupidity of Mexican servants. Here is a sample of the latter quality:

Complying with law and custom, I provided four men to do each a day's work toward cleaning a public ditch for irrigation purposes. At the end of the day a youth presented himself and the bill. The names of but two men were inscribed as having worked, but the sum demanded amounted to the wages of four.

"What is the meaning of this?" I inquired. "If only Luciano and Pedro worked, why do I pay the wages of Matildo and Jesus?"

"Two men worked," was the stolid rejoinder.

"Then I won't pay the wages of four."

"But two men did four days work."

"All in one day? That is impossible."

"But, senora, they did!"

"That cannot be. I must understand better before I pay two men the wages of four. Go and request the majordomo to look into this affair."

Presently the majordomo appeared.

"Senora," said he, "the bill is correct. The men have worked."

"Senor, I repeat, the thing is impossible. Two men cannot in one day do the work of four men."

"Senora, four men worked."

"Why, then, did this man tell me that only two worked? And why are not the names of Matildo and Jesus on the bill?"

"He told you that only two worked, because there was no room on the bill for the names of the others."

The majordomo spoke quite impatiently, as if I should have divined that process of reasoning by instinct. I induced him to squeeze in the names of Matildo and Jesus, which he did without a smile, and we parted on the best of terms.

The Great Unknown.

It was many years before the "Great Unknown" was identified. At the publication of the "Lay of the Last Minstrel," "Marmion," "Lady of the Lake' and finally of a novel called "Waverley," popular curiosity was excited, and the whole of England rang with the fame of the "Great Unknown," as Scott was called.

The secret was well kept. Sir Walter Scott, who all his life had been storing material and training his mind to such concentration that he could work in the midst of interruptions and was able to turn out volume after volume with a rapidity, two a year, that made his readers doubt their very senses. His incognito was all the more perfectly preserved in that he kept open house at Abbotsford, devoting much of his time to entertaining his guests and visiting. It was not until the embarrassment of his publishers occurred that the identity of the author of the "Waverley Novels" was discovered.

The case of Scott furnishes one of the many illustrations of the power of deceiving the public in literary matters.

The Truthful Marksman.

An extraordinary shooting adventure is recorded by A. L. Butler of the State museum, Selangor, Malaya. One day in last July a Malay woodcutter went out into the jungle to cut fuel, taking with him an old single barreled, muzzle loading gun loaded with the rather unscientific charge of a bullet and four buckshot. Moving quietly through the jungle, he suddenly came upon a tiger feeding on the carcass of a sambhur, and with touching confidence in his weapon fired at a distance of 20 paces. The tiger rolled over, and when the Malay cautiously approached he found not one dead tiger, but two, the second having been hidden from the sportsman, though only a few feet distant from the animal he fired at.

Mr. Butler, who made a post mortem examination of the tigers after they had been skinned, found that in each case a single buckshot had gone to the heart. One had also an insignificant wound on the head from another pellet. "For a really appalling fluke," as Mr. Butler says, this achievement of the Malay woodcutter will be hard to beat. It certainly is not a performance any sane white man will try to parallel, much less to eclipse.

Old Love and New Repartee.

People are smiling at the little passage at arms which took place between two young women at a luncheon the other day. One of the women is a beautiful blond, a bride, and she comes from the south. She met the other woman first at the aforesaid luncheon and, shaking hands in her characteristic, cordial way, said:

"I'm so glad to meet you! You have afforded me so much amusement."

"Amusement?" said the other.

"Oh, yes!" went on the bride. "I've been through my husband's desk, and I've read all his old love letters. I found several very warm and affectionate letters from you, and I enjoyed reading them ever so much."

"I'm so glad you enjoyed them!" purred the other. "But do come to see me very soon. I have the answers to all those letters, and you might like to read them. Mr. X.'s letters are ever so much warmer and more affectionate than those I wrote him. I know you'll enjoy reading them ever so much more than you did mine."—New York World.

"I went to Paris," says an Englishman, "staying at the Hotel de Lille et d'Albion. Never having been before, I lost my way and could not find my hotel again, because I neither spoke nor understood French. Thinking some of the people I met might understand written English, I went into a stationer's shop and bought a large card, on which I wrote, 'Please tell me the way to the Hotel de Lille et d'Albion.'

"Again I sallied out, showing my card to several, but still to no purpose. At last a man read it and silently beckoned me to follow him, which I did as silently for a mile or more. Then he pointed, still silently, to the sign of the hotel, and when I saw it I broke the silence by exclaiming, 'Thank you.'

"'What,' he replied in amazement, 'are you an Englishman? So am I, but I took you to be deaf and dumb.'"

The Power of Money.

"What," said the visitor to the village of his childhood, "what's become of the one boy I hated—Willie Hawker, the sneak? In prison, no doubt. He bore that fate on his face."

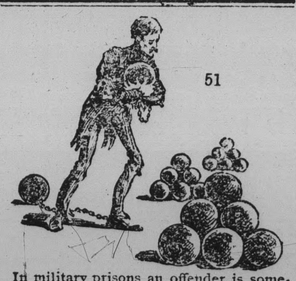
"Hush," said the old inhabitant. "He is now Mr. Hawker, the famous millionaire."

"What!" cried the visitor. "My dear schoolfellow a millionaire? I must call upon him and revive old friendship."

A Wise Course.

Blimbus—Yes, I always make it a rule to be prepared for the worst.

Hamby—If I were in your place, I'd do the same thing. There's no telling when that stupid office boy of yours may go to sleep and let some collector crowd his way in.—Chicago News.



In military prisons an offender is sometimes sentenced to carry cannon balls from one place to another and pile them up all day long. That is all. Perhaps it does not seem very terrible but it soon wears his life out. It is practically a death sentence, and he knows it; he would rather be shot. Many a sick man feels the same way about the burden of disease that he is lugging back and forth from day to day. He would as soon be down with a mortal disease. It will come to that sooner or later.

A man's life can be dragged out by dyspepsia and liver complaint. The experience of Mr. J. T. Cardwell, of Fall Creek Depot, Pittsylvania Co., Va., shows how Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery saves people from consumption by waking up their nutritive organism and giving it power to supply pure, healthy blood, which drives out blood poisons and dead tissues and builds up sound, wholesome flesh and muscle.

"I feel it my duty," writes Mr. Cardwell in a letter to Dr. Pierce, "to write you of the lasting benefits derived from the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and little 'Pellets.' Seven years ago I contracted a severe cold, which baffled the skill of one of the best physicians in my State. It ran on and I continually grew worse until I concluded to write to the 'World's Dispensary Medical Association.' The answer to my inquiry advised me to use 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets' for indigestion and liver complaint; at this time two months had passed. In two or three days after I had commenced the use of your medicine my cough had entirely stopped, my digestion was better, my low spirits driven away and I felt new life and vigor in my whole body."

This marvelous "Discovery" makes nerve force and rugged power. It is far better than oily emulsions; it does not make flabby fat, it does not increase the weight of corpulent people.

SONOMA, MAY 20, 1899.

H. H. GRANICE - - - - - - - - - - - - EDITOR

"WHAT is becoming of the birds?" This question has been frequently asked of late owing to the scarcity of the feathered tribe which thirty years ago outnumbered the birds of to-day one hundred to one in Sonoma valley. Various reasons have been assigned for this, the principal one being the shot gun and game bag of the local sportsman. To a certain extent this may be so, but it is our opinion that the small boy who makes it a practice of robbing birds nests every Spring has more to do with the scarcity of these natural born insect destroyers than all other causes combined. It is not generally known, but it is nevertheless a fact that, there is a law on our statute books which imposes a fine of not less than $20 nor more than $100 on any person found taking the eggs from the nest of any kind of a bird. It makes no difference whether the offender be young or old he is liable just the same. The Game Protective Association of Sacramento is after the small boy of that county with a sharp stick and an effort will be made by its members to suppress him when caught in the act of robbing birds nest. The mischievous youngsters ought to be looked after in this county also.

THE California Northerwestern Railway Company has issued a beautiful 32-page pamphlet descriptive of Marin, Sonoma, Mendocino and Lake counties. The little book is profusely illustrated with landscape scenes along the line of the railway which extends from Tiburon to Ukiah, one of the most productive in California and which, as is remarked in the pamphlet, has never known a failure of crops. President Foster and the directors of this line of railway are doing more than their share toward building up and making known to the outside world the counties above mentioned and that their efforts in this direction are appreciated no better evidence is wanting than the popularity of the road, which is essentially an institution being run in the interest of its local patrons.

"I HAVE called on you to-day," said the professional humorist, with a glad smile, as he approached the desk of the great editor and made himself comfortable in the precarious office chair that once had a cane bottom in it, "to propound to you a scheme that seems to me to be up-to-date and well worthy of consideration." "Umph!" growled the great editor. Thus encouraged, the humorist proceeded: "For some time past, as you have doubtless observed, the progress of the world has developed a peculiar phase, which may be spoken of as that of lessening. It seems to be the ambition of all inventors to add the word less to everything that has been invented in the past. We now have smokeless powder, painless dentistry, horseless carriages, wireless telegraphy, and many other things have undergone a change that may be similarly described; but I will not trouble you with a complete list. Now it seems to me that the time is ripe for a similar stride forward in the field of humor, and I have come to you to-day with a bundle of specially prepared pointless jokes." And in less time than it takes to write this a hatless and breathless humorist was fleeing wildly down the cheerless street.—Harper's Bazaar.

AGUINALDO has cold feet. Instead of being on the firing line he is skulking in the rear of his band niggers sniffling and afraid to surrender. The envoys of the Filipino army, however, are on their way to Manila prepared to sue for peace on any terms.

Postage to be Reduced to One Cent.

The enormous increase in the number of letters carried in the U. S. mails makes it certain that the rate of postage must eventually be reduced to one cent an ounce instead of two cents. The President who succeeds in getting such a measure through Congress will hold a high place in the esteem of the people, but no higher, perhaps than the esteem in which everybody holds Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This medicine has an unequalled record in reducing the sickness of mankind. It gets at the starting point of disease by acting upon the stomach direct, helping that important organ in its duty of digesting food. It fills the blood with the rich, red corpuscles of health, building up the tissues that general debility has destroyed. It makes good appetites, allays nervousness, stimulates the kidneys, and makes the rundown man or woman feel like a new person. Try it.

That Cough Hangs On

You have used all sorts of cough remedies but it does not yield; it is too deep seated. It may wear itself out in time, but it is more liable to produce la grippe, pneumonia or a serious throat affection. You need something that will give you strength and build up the body.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

will do this when everything else fails. There is no doubt about it. It nourishes, strengthens, builds up and makes the body strong and healthy, not only to throw off this hard cough, but to fortify the system against further attacks. If you are run down or emaciated you should certainly take this nourishing food medicine.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

THOS. M. DUNN PASSES AWAY.

Seized With an Attack of Heart Failure from Which He Failed to Rally.

T. M. Dunn, for thirty-two years a resident of this valley, died suddenly last Thursday morning of heart failure. The deceased, who had reached the ripe old age of seventy-five years, was in town a few days previous to his death apparently enjoying his usual good health, and the news of his sudden taking off was a shock to his many friends in this valley. Mr. Dunn was a native of New York, having been born on Long Island. In the early forties he was a member of the Volunteer Fire Department of New York of which Senator Broderick who was killed in a duel with the late David S. Terry, was an active member.

In 1862 he arrived in California and five year later he came to this valley and took the position of foreman on the Wheelock ranch, located north of this city. In 1873 he purchased the 100-acre ranch upon which with his family he has resided ever since. The deceased was a consistent member of the Congregational Church and a man well thought of by those who knew him best. He leaves a widow and ten grown sons and daughters. His funeral will take place Sunday.

An Escape From Napa Asylum Captured.

On Thursday last one of the patients at the Napa Asylum made his escape from that institution. The man's absence was not discovered until locking up time arrived. Two attaches of the asylum immediately started in pursuit and traced the man through this place to the Southern Pacific track near El Verano. Conductor Gage was notified and on his down trip from Santa Rosa yesterday morning saw the escape walking alongside the track. He stopped the train, picked the man up and taking him to Vallejo Junction had him returned to the asylum.

Measels at The Home.

There is an epidemic of measels at the California Home for Feeble-Minded Children. There are so many severe cases that all school exercises have been suspended and no visitors are allowed inside the buildings. The institution now has about 500 inmates and among them ninety cases have been reported in one day. Dr. and Mrs. Osborne and their assistants are doing all in their power to check the disease and relieve the sufferings of the unfortunate children.

The Water Question

The illness of Trustee Davis, who is still absent in San Francisco undergoing treatment, has delayed action on the part of the City Trustees on the water proposition. It is the intention of the Board as soon as Trustee Davis is able to return home and assume his duties as Trustee to take immediate action in the matter.

LOST FOUND.

FIVE DAYS WITHOUT FOOD AND WATER.

H. Joost Found Alive After Being Mourned as Dead.

Wandered Away in a Demented Condition and Became Lost in the Mountains.

Saturday morning last H. Joost, lessee of the Dutton ranch, located in the mountains two miles north of town, mysteriously disappeared and for five days it was thought he had died a lonely death in one of the many deep and almost inaccessible canons which lead from the top of mountains to the Agua Caliente creek thousands of feet below.

Accompanied by his eight-year-old son he left the ranch house about 8 o'clock Saturday morning to search for three horses, which had been turned out to pasture. Two of the animals were found and secured about a mile or so from the house. These he turned over to the lad with instructions to take them home. The boy then left his father who started off in an opposite direction to look for the other horse. This was the last seen of Mr. Joost until found by Warren Hunt five days afterwards, and although his son returned an hour or so after, expecting to find his parent where he had agreed to meet him, the man was no where to be seen.

When night came and Mr. Joost did not return the family became uneasy, but thought that probably the horse he was after had strayed away and in a long quest of the animal he had became tired and stopped at one of the neighboring ranches for the night. Failing to return Sunday, Mrs. Joost, who had been absent in San Francisco for several weeks, but who returned home on that day, became greatly alarmed and word was sent to town of Mr. Joost's sudden disappearance.

On Monday small searching parties were organized and every cattle trail on the big ranch was examined, as it was thought by the relatives that Mr. Joost, who was subject to fainting spells, had fallen down and died while looking for the horse. The search was fruitless, however. On Tuesday morning between twenty-five and thirty people turned out. Mountains were climbed, deep wooded canons and dense thickets searched all day long, but not a sign of the missing man could be discovered.

The hunt was renewed and kept up all day Wednesday and, as on the previous days, was fruitless.

On Thursday morning about 7 o'clock when everybody engaged in the search had given the man up for dead, Warren Hunt of Agua Caliente, while out hunting cows on the Wooster place, came suddenly upon the missing man. He was standing under a tree in a dazed and half-demented condition. His clothes were in tatters from coming in contact with the thick brush and he was a woeful sight to behold.

He was taken to his home and although without food and water for five consecutive days he was able to walk about and converse. This is all the more remarkable from the fact that the man when he became lost in the mountains was very sick, weak and emaciated.

The place where he was found was several miles distant from where he had been left by his son. Searching parties had passed and repassed over the very spot where he was discovered, showing that the missing man must have been on the move all the time.

Mr. Joost, upon being interviewed, had no recollection of his wanderings except on the fourth day, when he claims to have came to his senses and could see parties of searchers from a distance. He was too weak to shout and could not attract their attention.

Dr. Walliser, shortly after Mr. Joost had been conveyed to his home, was called to prescribe for him. He found his patient somewhat exhausted, but the Doctor could hardly make up his mind that his patient had survived so terrible an ordeal as being a wanderer in the mountains for five days without food, shelter or water.

RUNAWAY AND SMASH-UP.

Narrow Escape of Two Young Ladies.

On Tuesday afternoon last as the Misses Lizzie and Jessie Carriger, daughters of Mrs. Caleb Carriger, were driving into town in a light buggy they were run down by a runaway horse attached to a spring wagon and had a narrow escape from being killed. As it was, they were severely cut and bruised and their buggy completely wrecked. The accident happened at Perkins' corner near the iron bridge across Sonoma creek. They had just crossed the bridge and were in the act of turning the corner when the runaway, which was was coming from the opposite direction without a driver, collided with the buggy with terrific force. The young ladies were thrown from their seats and the impact was so great that the wagon was turned completely upside down on one side of the road while the buggy was hurled to the other side and reduced to kindling wood.

The corner where the accident occurred is a most dangerous one, The turn is quite sharp and owing to the presence of several large trees it is impossible in making the turn to see a team approaching from the opposite direction until one turns the corner. Several collisions have been avoided at that point the past few months owing to the presence of mind of the drivers. The trees, which belong to the county, ought to be removed to guard against a similar accident like that of last Tuesday.

HIS SHOULDER WAS DISLOCATED.

But Fred. Joy Did Not Find it Out Until Seven Weeks After the Accident.

About seven weeks ago Fred. Joy, driver of the bus between Sonoma and El Verano, while on his way to the latter place, went over an embankment with the bus and had his right shoulder dislocated. The injury was very painful, but became less so a short time after the accident and he did not think it necessary to have the shoulder examined by a surgeon, thinking it had only been slightly wrenched. The pain in the shoulder, however, instead of lessening continued to increase and the other day he concluded to have Dr. Alf. McLaughlin, who was over from Petaluma, examine the shoulder. The Dr. did so and discovered a very bad dislocation. On Monday night, assisted by Dr. Walliser, he reduced the dislocation, which was a very difficult operation as the misplaced shoulder joint had knitted together. Mr. Joy stood the operation all right but will carry his right arm in a sling for some weeks.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications, as they connot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuos lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entir ly closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A SMALL-SIZED CYCLONE.

Strikes the Merry-Go-Round Tent and Levels it to the Ground.

A small-sized cyclone on Sunday afternoon last struck the tent of the merry-go-round on the McDonell lot on Broadway and razed it to the ground. Fortunately the wooden ponies were not going at the time else most serious consequences might have followed the collapse of the tent. A number of children and grown people, however, were standing around on the outside of the canvas, all of whom managed to get out of harm's way except Louis Luizon, one of the owners, who became entangled in a heavy swinging iron chain which caught him around the neck and felled him to the earth. He was knocked nearly senseless, but soon recovered from the shock. The damage to the tent necessitated a delay of several days in starting up the merry-go-round.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

Bids for Repairing the City Pavilion Rejected.

The Old Shanty Has Outlived its "Uselessness" and a New Edifice Will No Doubt Take its Place—Other Matters.

The Board of City Trustees held their regular meeting last Wednesday evening, Trustees Harris, Hartin and Seipp were present. In the absence of President Duhring, Trustee Seipp occupied the chair. The minutes of the last regular and one special meeting were read and approved.

Bills as follows were read, allowed and ordered paid:

Toroni & Perasso, removing grass	$14.50
P. G. Keil, packing hydrants	3.50
H. Munfrey, labor and supplies	2.45
Mrs. J. A. Poppe, supplies	1.45
Total	$21.90

On motion of Trustees Hartin, which received a second from Trustee Harris, the clerk was instructed to invite bids for cleaning the ditches in the Plaza and streets, the work to be completed within ten days after awarding the contract.

All bids for painting the pavilion and roof were rejected, on account of bad condition of the building.

The clerk was instructed to notify G. H. H. Cornelius and Anna Ludemann to complete their sidewalks on Second-street East without delay.

J. M. Cheney was re-appointed City Recorder, and was directed to file a new bond.

Two bids were received for sprinkling the streets as follows: J. N. Stademan, $2.40 per day; Fred. Joy, $2.24 per day.

On motion of Trustee Hartin, which was seconded by Trustee Harris, the contract was awarded to Fred. Joy, he being the lowest bidder. He was directed to begin sprinkling at once.

The Plaza Committee was given full power to have the walks in the Plaza and around the pavilion cleaned and the grass removed.

Henry Weyl was given permission to pasture his sheep on the Plaza for two weeks.

No further business appearing the Board adjourned.

Doing a Big Business.

Julius Fochetti, blacksmith and dealer in agricultural implements, whose adv. will be found in these columns, has sold an immense number of mowers and rakes this season, in which he has done a land office business. He reports trade in his line as being exceedingly brisk.

Slight Frost.

There was a slight frost in the low places in this valley last Thursday morning. A few vines were slightly nipped but otherwise there was no damage. The grape outlook is very encouraging in Sonoma Valley as all danger from a late frost is now passed.

Brevities.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

H. H. GRANICE, Proprietor.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, MAY 20, 1899.

Notice of Business Change.

The old saying that "the unlooked-for always happens" may be true in the present instance. The Sonoma News is no more! Having sold the paper and its good will to Mr. Granice, the business and subscription books pass into his hands. Those who are in arrears for their paper will please pay Mr. Granice and those who have paid in advance will receive the INDEX-TRIBUNE to full extent of their subscriptions.

There are three reasons I might give for making this change. It is well known that I did not buy the News with the intention of running it myself. A person usually sells a commercial commodity when the price asked is accepted. The third reason is the more potent one—our patronizing territory is too limited to properly support two weekly newspapers.

But we do need and must have for the weal of the commonwealth one good, wide-awake paper, which shall be alive to the best interests of our people, and such a paper Mr. Granice will be able to furnish us providing he has the good will and support his paper merits. So we sincerely hope all our subscribers and patrons will lend a hand.

With a thank you to our friends and wishes for the success of the INDEX-TRIBUNE we break our quill.

E. E. THOMPSON.

Sonoma Jan. 3, 1899.

The Kidney Complexion.

The pale, sallow, sunken-cheeked distressed-looking people you so often meet are afflicted with "Kidney Complexion."

Their kidneys are turning to a parsnip color. So is their complexion.

They may also have indegistion, or suffer from sleeplessness, rheumatism, neuralgia, brain trouble, nervous exhaustion and sometimes the heart acts badly.

The cause is weak, unhealthy kidneys.

Usually the sufferer from kidney disease does not find out what the trouble is until it is almost too late because the first symptoms are so like mild sickness that they do not think they need medicine or a doctor until they find themselves sick in bed.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root will build up and strengthen their weak and diseased kidneys, purify their diseased kidney-poisoned blood, clear their complexion and soon they will enjoy better health.

You can get the regular sizes at the drug store, at fifty cents and one dollar, or you may first prove for yourself the wonderful virtues of this great discovery, Swamp-Root, by sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co, Binghamton, N. Y. for a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent to you absolutely free by mail. When writing kindly mention that you read this liberal offer in the SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

To-Night and To-Morrow Night.

And each day and night during this week you can get at any druggist's Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, acknowledged to be the most successful remedy ever sold for Coughs, Croup, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption. Get a bottle to-day and keep it always in the house, so you can check your cold at once. Price 25c. and 50c. Sample bottle free.

Try Allen's Foot-Ease.

A powder to be shaken into the shoes. At this season your feet feel swollen, nervous and hot, and get tired easily. If you have smarting feet or tight shoes, try Allen's Foot-Ease. It cools the feet and makes walking easy. Cures swollen and sweating feet, blisters and callous spots. Relieves corns and bunions of all pain and gives rest and comfort. Try it to-day. Sold by all druggists and shoe stores for 25c. Trial package FREE. Address, Allen Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Free Hairdressing.

Some one said once that you could get almost anything for nothing in New York. This was brought practically to my notice a few days ago, says a writer in the New York Herald, as I was going up town on Third avenue. I passed a barber shop which displayed this strange sign:

"Ladies' Hairdressing Done Free Every Afternoon From 1 to 5 o'Clock."

As it was past 3 I was prompted by curiosity to go in and investigate. I found the "ladies'" hairdressing parlor a neat, cozy place, with a number of chairs standing in front of a long mirror, which covered one side of the room.

I was fortunate enough to find a subject in the chair, who was having her hair dressed. She was a middled aged, thick handed, respectable looking woman, who was going to the inevitable ball. "Doing" her hair was a nice looking little woman, the head of the hairdressing establishment, and gathered around the chair were half a dozen white coated young men, watching the process of the work and occasionally giving assistance. And that is how the apprentice or student in hairdressing gains his experience, and the clever women who are in touch with the trick get their hair dressed for nothing.

The Prig and His Cane.

In the number of The Tatler for Oct. 6, 1709, it is observed that "a cane is part of the dress of a prig" (this, by the way, shows the erroneous notion prevalent that "priggishness" is a modern word) "and always worn upon a button, for fear he should be thought to have an occasion for it or be esteemed really and not genteelly a cripple."

In the number of Nov. 18 a rural squire in town is sketched who is the prototype of one of the pavement nuisances: "His arms naturally swang at an unreasonable distance from his sides, which, with the advantage of a cane that he brandished in a great variety of irregular motions, made it unsafe for any one to walk within several years of him."

And under date of Dec. 5 there is an amusing sketch of "a lively, fresh colored young man" who was among the applicants to Isaac Bickerstaff's court of censorship for license to use "canes, perspective glasses, snuffboxes, orange flower waters and the like ornaments of life." This young man had his cane hanging on his fifth button and was "an Oxford scholar who was just entered at the temple."—Gentleman's Magazine.

Froze the Quicksand.

"When I was out among the hills of northern India," said the major, "I had an experience that I wonder didn't turn my hair gray. I was camped all alone on the side of the Ganges and had occasion to go for some water. Before I knew where I was I had stepped right into a quicksand. I knew what was up at once and knew that I was gone. As I stood there with that horrible sand dragging at me like some living monster I turned colder and colder. Do what I could my teeth would keep on clattering, though I knew that every vibration of my jaw was shaking me farther down into that ready made grave. Suddenly I noticed that I had stopped sinking."

"Struck the bottom, eh?"

"Certainly not; I had grown so cold from horror and fear—I may as well admit—that I actually froze the water in the quicksand."

If It Hadn't Been Sunday.

"Had it not been the Sabbath day," said a Perthshire preacher to an elder "between the preachin's," "I would just have asked ye how the hay was selling in Perth on Friday."

"Well, sir," said the elder, "had it no been the day it is I wad jest hae tell't ye it was gaun at a shillin the stane."

"Indeed! Well, had it been Monday instead of the Sabbath I would have told ye I have some to sell."

"Umph, aye, ou aye, sir! And had it been Monday, as ye say, then I wad jest hae tell't ye I wad gie ye the market price for it."

The elder's carts were at the manse early on Monday morning, and the preacher's haystack vanished like a highland mist.

George's Teeth.

The American Journal of Dental Science for 1843 states that George Washington lost most of his natural teeth at an early age, relying upon the art and skill of one Mr. John Greenwood, a distinguished dentist of New York, to make good the deficiency.

Washington's artificial teeth were manufactured from the ivory of the tusk of the elephant, the only material at that time employed for the purpose.

An Episcopal Joke.

The Isis tells a story about the bishop of Oxford. The bishop was at a meeting engaged in anditing the accounts of a sectarian school. Among the items was one of £50 for an "occasional monitor." One of the persons present asked the bishop what an "occasional monitor" was. He is reported to have answered, "I suppose that is the nonconformist conscience."

A Lost Advantage.

Hicks—There's Grility. What a pity that so fine a looking fellow should be deaf and dumb!

Wicks—The dumb is all right, but if he wasn't deaf, what an agreeable person he would be to converse with!—Boston Transcript.

He who would pass his declining years with honor and comfort should, when young, remember that he may one day become old and remember when he is old that he has been once young.—Addison.

Four sweet lips, two pure souls, one undying affection—these are love's ingredients for a kiss.—Bones.

VICK'S SEEDS

Bulbs and Plants have gone to thousands of satisfied Customers for a half century and to celebrate the 50th year in business we have issued a Special Golden Wedding Edition of VICK'S GARDEN AND FLORAL GUIDE, which is a work of art. It has 24 pages in colors, 4 pages souvenir, and nearly 100 pages filled with handsome half-tone illustrations of Flowers, Vegetables, Plants, Fruits, etc., elegantly bound in white and gold. A marvel in Catalogue making; an authority on all subjects pertaining to the garden, with care for the same, and a descriptive catalogue of all that is desirable. It is too expensive to give away indiscriminately, but we want everyone interested in a good garden to have a copy, therefore we will send the Guide with a Due Bill for 25 cents worth of Seeds for only 15 cts. It tells how credit is given for full amount of purchase to buy other goods.
Vick's Little Gem Catalogue. A perfect little gem of a price list. It is simply the Guide condensed, finely illustrated, and in handy shape. FREE
Vick's Illustrated Monthly Magazine, enlarged, improved, and up to date on all subjects relating to Gardening, Horticulture, etc., 50 cents a year. Special 1899 offer—the Magazine one year and Vick's Garden and Floral Guide, for 25 cents.

Can you do better than to take THE OVERLAND for 1899? Here are ONE THOUSAND PAGES of the fresh, strong work of the men and women of the West, writers who have lived the life of which they write, and seen and felt the things they describe, and FIVE HUNDRED PICTURES the work of the most talented artists of a region that has produced many such, and is producing them all the time. ALL FOR ONE DOLLAR.

Every dime you spend for the magazine, and every copy that you read or send to a friend is helping The Overland in its great mission set before it in 1868, when Bret Harte gave it its motto: "Devoted to the Development of the Country."
